

Notch

A very thick New Zealand pachanoi that strongly resembles PC.

The following are comments from Ross Garau about his acquisition of Notch:

"This was the mother plant before it was cut down to a stump by the owner. One day it was there and next day it was not.

[The stump:]

A while later I decided to call in and see what happened to it and there it was, cut down and laying in a heap. Unloved. ?

But he said I could take it to save him the hassle and dump fees so I crammed it all in our vehicle. Despite having 3 kids in the car I was still able to fit it all in.?

Took em home and planted them. They are fattening up again but it has taken a long time.

It is prone to black spots from humidity." -RG

"This was the death pile of Notch. When I see cactus stacked up with no protective layer in between them it hurts my eyes."
